Locating people missing in Japan

These two emergency sites have been set up to help people share information about their safety and connect with people in areas affected by the disaster:

- Red Cross Family Links Network:
www.familylinks.icrc.org/wfl/wfl_jap.nsf/DocIndex/locate_eng?opendocument
- Google Person Finder (in English and Japanese):
<http://japan.person-finder.appspot.com/?lang=en>

Radiation exposure

People in Japan should follow local directives for safety instructions following radiation leaks from damaged nuclear reactors. The U.S. State Department embassy notices and travel warnings (links at the top of this resource list) are among the sources for those local directives.

Information about protection from exposure to radiation can also be found at these links:

- Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA)
