Caveat

- The material in this briefing is current BUT is subject to change in the future.
 - N.B. SEVERAL changes in JTR material ‘location ‘ within the JTR
- Do NOT make this brief the basis of ANY decision; rather consult the appropriate reference (JTR or JFTR) for current information.
- “If you can’t stand the answer, don’t ask the question.” (Ed Brennan, State Department)
- N.B. The PDTATAC website has changed! See the several CORRECT references in this brief.

Reminders

- Different laws cause different allowances for uniformed personnel and civilian employees
- NB: JFTR & JTR (&FTR) are NOT “guidance”
 - They have the force & effect of law!
 - There are NO JFTR or JTR ‘waivers’!
- Just because JFTR (or JTR) doesn’t say you can’t do something does NOT mean that you can (JFTR, par. U1000 and JTR, par. C1050-A)
- JFTR & JTR Appendices A are must-read if dealing with travel & transportation allowances

Reminders (cont'd)

- Continuing emphasis on CTO use
 - Use for all official travel is required by statutory regulation, CTO contracts, and is DOD MANDATORY policy
 - Personnel action available for violators
 - JFTR, par. U3125; JTR, par. C2203
 - Any inference to the contrary is NOT correct

Travel Authorizations/Orders

- “Throw the folder away!” Reread about how to complete an authorization/order!
- Service order preparation written material for uniformed personnel; or
- JTR, APP I for civilian employee authorization
 - Follow the JTR!!!
- A poorly worded travel authorization/order almost always leads to poorly/inaccurately provided services, misunderstanding about allowances, and unhappy travelers

 - Comparing uniformed & civilian allowances – NOT useful
 - different functions; different amounts

- Defense Travel Management Office (DTMO) administers the Rental Car Agreement Program
 - Still uses the CTOs!
- TDY mileage rate ($.55/mile) eff 1 January 2009
- A single 'per POC' MALT rate
 - No matter how many passengers are in the POC
 - $.24/mile (effective 1 January 2009)

Frequently Asked Questions

- Why must we use city-pair airfares when there are less expensive airfares available? And what's with the CTO fees for ticket changes?
- Do I, as a civilian employee, have to use Government lodgings?
- When will all travelers have one set of travel regs?

Frequently Asked Question Answers

- Why must we use city-pair airfares when there are less expensive airfares available? And what's with the CTO fees for ticket changes? A – 5 city-pair exceptions – See JFTR/JTR, APP P; CTOs no longer get airline rebates
 - BEWARE on-line airfare bookers & fees associated with restricted airfares
 - BEWARE on-line hotel bookers & the lack of receipts
- Do I, as a civilian employee, have to use Government lodgings? A – You don't (except for limited schoolhouse situations).
- When will all travelers have one set of travel regs? A – Within DOD, within 2 years is the desired time frame
 - There will still be differences between members and civilian employees since the underlying laws are different and GSA sets policy for civilian employees; hopefully in one set of regulations

Wrap Up

- PDTATAC website:
<http://www.defensetravel.dod.mil/perdiem>
 - You can get e-mail notification of significant changes!
- Any traveler's BIGGEST need is:
 - CORRECT AND TIMELY INFORMATION!!
- I suggest travelers be informed by knowledgeable personnel using JFTR, or JTR/FTR/DSSR, and Service implementing regs
 - JTR implements FTR (& DSSR, in part, & some OPM regs) for DOD civilian employees
 - JFTR is a statutory regulation for uniformed services
 - PDTATAC is required to review "all written material" implementing JFTR and/or JTR (DODD 5154.29)
