War Department School Liaison Program

The School Liaison Program provides vital resources and services to:

- Parents: Navigating local education options and supporting students
- Commanders: Strengthening mission readiness through education support
- School personnel: Partnering to address the unique needs of military-connected students
- Community: Building partnerships and fostering collaboration to enhance education opportunities and support for military-connected students

What We Do:

School liaisons are DOW civilian education experts who:

- Advocate for military-connected students across pre-K-12 educational settings
- Serve as the primary point of contact between families, schools and installations
- Build partnerships to enhance educational opportunities and community relationships

Our Goals:

- Identify and remove barriers to academic success.
- Foster collaboration among families, installations and schools.
- Promote awareness of education policies and laws affecting military students.
- Equip families and educators with tools to address military lifestyle challenges.

How We Can Help:

- Education options navigation
- Homeschool and special education support
- Transition, deployment and absence support
- College, career and military readiness
- Youth Sponsorship Program
- Military Interstate Children's Compact Commission compliance
- Grants and scholarships assistance
- Workshops for families and educators

Why It Matters:

The School Liaison Program ensures military-connected students receive a quality education that supports their unique needs while strengthening community relationships and enhancing military readiness.

Who We Serve:

This program is open to all DOW ID card holders, educators working with military-connected students, and community partners at no charge. For more information, contact your local school liaison today.
