

Informs on Military Family Readiness

The Community Capacity Inventory is an online, evidence-informed inventory that provides insight into the readiness of individual service members and their spouses.

CCI helps military leadership and family readiness service providers make informed decisions about Military Family Readiness resource allocation and service delivery.

Why should I take the assessment?

The short CCI inventory questionnaire helps service members and their spouses assess how prepared they are to manage military life challenges by assessing awareness and accessibility of informal and formal resources. Individuals completing the inventory receive feedback on their personal readiness and information about connecting to additional information and resources.

Readiness indicators include:

- Military and family readiness
- Preparedness
- Family support programs and services
- Unit leaders
- Information networks
- Community resources

The Community Capacity Inventory takes less than 30 minutes to complete and provides valuable and personalized feedback on personal readiness. Discover strengths as well as where to find the resources and support services to navigate daily military life.

To complete the CCI assessment, visit:

