In-Person Outreach
for the Military Community

Supporting the Total Force

Military OneSource state consultants come in person to explain the benefits, services and resources available to the military community.

Anyone who serves the military community can request a visit from a state consultant, including:

- Military leaders from every branch
- Military service providers
- Civilian and community organizations that serve military populations

What Military OneSource state consultants can do for you

State consultants help you serve those who serve:

- Hosting small group informational sessions to educate service members, their families and survivors about the benefits and resources available to them
- Providing information and referral services to help each member of the military community live their best MilLife
- Supporting your events with presentations and resource tables that highlight services available through Military OneSource
- Delivering standalone briefings about Military OneSource offerings

Meet the needs of your community

Military OneSource state consultants tailor their outreach methods and content to the specific needs of each community. They can provide information on these topics and many others:

- Personal finance
- Education
- Employment
- Health and wellness
- Caregiving
- Relationships
- Recreation and travel
- Deployment
- PCSing
- Services for military spouses and kids
