[Presenter]:

Military life means you've got a mission to accomplish. Our mission at Military OneSource is to provide support built for the way you live and work so you can focus on the job at hand. Let's take a second to show you how MilitaryOneSource.mil puts you in touch quickly with information and solutions, fast navigation to the services and essential information you are looking for. Starting with the homepage: Find different types of personal support, explore digital tools and resources, browse topics relevant to your military life, connect with a live expert and more. Let's talk personal support. Help is here from military-trained experts, whether you need quick guidance on a solution, support on anything from money to moving or confidential counseling to take on challenges. Explore tools: Get quick access to your benefits, such as MilTax, free tax services; tools to help you find a military and family life counselor; or spouse education and career opportunities. Browse by topic: Need info on deployment, moving and housing, relationships, or separating and retiring? Browse by topic and find up-to-date guidance tailored for military life. Connect now. Get the help you need now, the way you need it, from calling to live chat, including a quick 24/7 connection to crisis support. And if you're a service provider or a leader, tap into the latest resources, products and documents to empower those you serve. For more quick connections, check here. Sign up for eNewsletters, explore other Defense Department programs and personalize your experience with a Military OneSource account. Military life moves fast. Military OneSource moves with you. Stay mission ready and up to date with trusted support made for you at MilitaryOneSource.mil.
