Become a SpouseWorks Fellowship Host

Tap into a highly skilled, military spouse workforce for free.

The SpouseWorks Fellowship (formerly the Career Accelerator) connects employers with career-ready military spouses through paid, 12-week fellowships. The War Department program covers the cost, so it's free for employers. Fellows bring the education, skills and experience needed to contribute meaningful work from day one. In return, host organizations provide training and hands-on experience, with the option to hire fellows full time after the fellowship ends.

Benefits of being a host employer

- Access to a highly skilled and educated workforce matched to your needs
- Opportunity to build to workforce capacity with the cost paid for by the War Department
- Recognition through promotional activities and social media engagement

Join us as an employer partner and fellowship host.

Employers play a direct role in supporting the all-volunteer force and military family readiness by hiring and retaining military spouses. In addition to becoming a fellowship host, employers can also join the Military Spouse Employer Partnership to show a commitment to hiring and retaining military spouses.
